Education can free the power of ILS

The use of ILS has the potential to close the protection gap, but education and collaboration will be key, say Kirill Savrassov of Phoenix CRetro, and Toby Pughe of Tenax Capital.

How can ILS conquer less-developed markets?

Developing countries have a low insurance penetration for several reasons. First, it's a serious undercapitalisation of local markets, so there is a minimal insurance sector engagement for large natural catastrophes at the macro level (the recent Turkey earthquake and Pakistan floods are perfect examples).

Second, there are artificial barriers and heavy protectionism in certain countries, whereby the existence of national reinsurers with compulsory cessions slows down and limits access to global reinsurance markets. Third, there is a huge education gap when it comes to alternative risk transfer instruments and insurance-linked securities (ILS) products in particular.

Their understanding of risk transfer mechanisms, through no fault of their own, is limited-they don't know what they don't know.

On the other hand, the demand is there on the investor side. Even for the most basic of ILS instruments, such as vanilla parametric, they just need the product to come to the market. The cat bond market specifically is only so big and the larger investors have appetite for more products, especially those that provide portfolio diversification.

Where should education around ILS be taraeted?

Regulators and government officials. In territories where the countries are small, an aggregated "risk community" would be beneficial. It's good for the countries and investors, because they benefit from economies of scale. Frankly, everyone could benefit from understanding ILS more.

Even people at big banks and nonspecialist asset managers don't understand ILS that well. However, the priority should be to target politicians and the ultimate decision-makers.

Here is an interesting observation: if you put an institutional investor or asset manager, an insurer and, say, a government official dealing with large natural disasters, into one room-they will all have interest in the use of ILS products, but it will be from completely different perspectives. Systemic education is key in order to harmonise understanding.

66 Everyone could benefit from understanding ILS more. ??

What initiatives are under way to achieve this?

There are initiatives ranging from multilateral agencies such as the World Bank, UNDP, and regional development banks trying to increase awareness of local governments in parametric products and other alternative risk transfer options, to our Fundamentals of ILS course. So far, we are the only executive education and certification programme focusing on ILS. Since our launch in Autumn 2021 we have taught more than 80 students across 35 countries.

What is ILS's potential?

It has big potential in emerging markets. For too long, poor countries become poorer through no fault of their own. If they understood risk transfer better, and had people advising them, at least some of this risk could be transferred away.

Public and private markets must collaborate for it to be effective. Governments need to amend legislation to make the purchase of insurance compulsory and/or allocate a fixed amount to disaster prevention and recovery.

If we introduced a scheme of "do these measures and we will reduce the rate on line you pay each year" it opens up a whole new portion of the market, not just for the buyer of insurance but also for environmental, social and corporate governance (ESG)-type investors.

How can ILS help less-developed nations?

Regulators and insurers in many developing countries think that ILS is extremely complex. However, this comes from a lack of understanding. With a proper educational effort, the introduction of ILS and alternative risk transfer products could speed up the closure of a growing protection gap very efficiently.

The involvement of influential stakeholders in large projects can be beneficial. As an example: developing transborder transport corridors of the Chinese Belt & Road Initiative (BRI) could stimulate transit countries to introduce sovereign-level risk transfer solutions. In many cases ILS with its unique features can be the only viable way to protect vital transport infrastructure there.

After leaving China, at least three core transport corridors of the BRI are passing through one of the most earthquake-exposed territories in the world.

What is your goal in this sphere?

To continue to educate investors and insureds on the advantages of risk transfer. It's a winwin situation for all involved. ILS investors get much-needed diversification and vulnerable insureds can transfer risk away.

The added bonus is that investors often like parametric products because of their transparency, and these are better suited for emerging market countries where historical claims/underwriting data is likely to be sparse. 🔵

New ILS course to begin as founder eyes wider product reach

n education programme designed to encourage more re/insurance practitioners to engage in insurancelinked securities (ILS) will start next month.

The programme, the brainchild of ILS expert Kirill Savrassov, is now in its third year. About 80 professionals from insurance and related fields have completed the programme, which carries continuing education credits.

Savrassov, who has been leading initiatives to encourage the use of ILS in Eastern Europe and Asia, said the faculty for the course features leading practitioners including lawyer Clive O'Connell, head of insurance and reinsurance at law firm McCarthy Denning; insurance professional Toby Pughe; and Urs Ramseier, executive chairman of ILS fund Twelve Capital. The course starts on October 17.

Savrassov said he is launching more education programmes designed to improve knowledge beyond the introductory Fundamentals of ILS.

66 The course features leading practitioners. ??

He said the new courses included Capital Markets and Investment Management and a Project Management Foundation Course. The courses start on October 16 and October 23.

Savrassov said he launched the programme, of which he is also a faculty member, to encourage the use of ILS around the world.

Some financial aid is available for people who can show financial need, and insurers from Ukrainie were provided with free tuition last year after the Russian invasion.

Savrassov, the chief executive of Phoenix CRetro, particularly hopes that the increased acceptance of ILS and catastrophe bonds will encourage their use in Asia, saying China's Belt and Road initiative would benefit in particular.

"The Belt and Road from China through the rest of Asia passes through some of the most earthquake-exposed areas in the world," he said. "The development of local insurance is low, so sovereign cat bonds are the only way to protect the initiative from large earthquakes."

"Thanks to Kirill and Toby I discovered this incredible asset class - Insurance Linked Securities."

Being uncorrelated with broad traditional market indices, the ILS market provides a great alternative to traditional financial instruments. This is particularly important during periods of financial instability when the demand for safe assets becomes especially high. Thanks to its robust structure this asset class along with traditional instruments can act as a «flight to safety» in times of uncertainty.

The Fundamentals of Insurance-Linked Securities provides a comprehensive view of ILS as a special asset class covering all aspects of the matter from its structure and pricing to up-to-date climate issues. Excellent guest speakers with impressive backgrounds share their unique experience in a friendly and interactive atmosphere with personal insights and constant feedback.

Testimonials

This global executive education and qualification program on Insurance-Linked Securities (ILS) is the first ever (and so far the only) course to offer this education and is known to go well beyond just the 'fundamentals' by their distinguished alumni.

The course provides a mixture of the technical aspects of ILS along with practical examples, providing insights on the different types of ILS solutions, how they are used, and the role they play in narrowing the global protection gap. Of particular interest is the future of parametric insurance solutions for broader disaster risk management and helping emerging economies to #buildbackbetter following natural disasters.

Personally, completing this course is part of an overall effort to accelerate my understanding of the (re)insurance industry and how ILS plays a part in this fascinating space.

Testimonials

"Having just passed my examination, and having been awarded the qualification of Cert ILS, I thought it timely to provide my feedback and testimonial for this unique global executive education and certification program.

The Fundamentals of Insurance Linked Securities course is a fully accredited, extremely well curated learning experience. It is presented in an engaging format by two highly experienced ILS practitioners, Toby Pughe FCII and industry doyen Kirill Savrassov Cert ILS. With two live lectures a week totaling three to four hours, an online resource platform filled with news archives, fact sheets and pre-recorded lectures, I had everything at my fingertips to maximize my ILS knowledge upload.

The live lectures are professionally prepared with both depth and breadth of information, imparted at a pace that allowed discussion and plenty of time for Q&A throughout. The guest lecturers included leading ILS luminaries such as Dr Urs Ramseier, Founding Partner and Chairman of Twelve Capital, top reinsurance lawyer Clive O'Connell, Oleg Kapinos CAIA, Senior Investment Product Specialist at Tokyo Marine Asset Management and Phillip Pettersen, NED at African Risk Capacity.

Executive education courses really don't come much better than this. If you are committed to being at the forefront of the growing alternative risk transfer/ILS and disaster risk financing industry then this course, in my humble opinion, is a must.

Each year I undertake an online executive education programme with a six-to-twelve-week duration, often with globally renowned institutions. The Fundamentals of Insurance Linked Securities course is, without doubt, the best constructed and delivered course I have undertaken to date."

Testimonials

"The Fundamentals of Insurance-Linked Securities" is a unique, comprehensive course that places places meeting disaster risk financial innovation in a global context. The agenda provides practical insights into the way that disaster risk finance and reduction instruments can fill critical financial gaps, which are necessary to stimulate economic development and to protect vulnerable populations.

The curriculum is organized in a way to build solid comprehension over the short two month period, and to provide practical insights and understanding of ILS instruments.

The lecturers were world-class and attentive to the questions and learning needs the student cohort.

As a legal and governance advisor to three sovereign risk pools covering nearly 80 countries, I found the course an invaluable addition to build multidisciplinary tools and the knowledge-base required to serve disaster risk finance initiatives.

Many thanks to Kirill, Toby, and the many expert lecturers."

Testimonials

"The Fundamentals of Insurance-Linked Securities" is the best resource for learning the basics and practice of ILS. The curriculum covers a wide range of topics from the background of ILS to the recent market environment and the latest topics. The course also includes review and self-directed assignments, allowing students to learn effectively and efficiently in two months.

The lecturers are considerably knowledgeable and explained each topic in an easy-to-understand and multifaceted manner. In addition, there are opportunities to network with specialists in the industry, which is one of the great attractions. I would highly recommend this course to both beginners interested in ILS and experts in this field.

I would like to thank you Kirill, Toby, and everyone involved.

本コースは、ILSの基礎や実務を学ぶ上で最高の教材です。カリキュラムはILSの背景から、近年のマーケット環境、最新のトピックスまで 幅広くカバーされています。予習復習、自主課題も完備されており、2ヶ月で効果的・効率的に学習することができます。 講師の方々はとても造詣が深く、各内容をわかりやすくかつ多角的に解説していただきました。また、本業界のスペシャリストたちとの ネットワーキングの機会があることも大きな魅力の一つです。ILSに興味がある初心者もこの領域のエキスパートにもとてもお勧めできま す。

Kirill, Toby, 関係者の皆様に感謝いたします。

Testimonials

"Having spent much of my insurance experience underwriting a very niche insurance product, the lack of availability of insurance capacity has always been a challenge. The convergence of insurance/reinsurance, capital markets and risk appetite has spurred Insured Linked Securities and plugged the capacity gap.

It was with this in mind, I enrolled onto the online course on The Fundamentals of Insurance-Linked Securities so as to gain insight on how such securities are used and applied in the global market. I highly recommend this course to anyone seeking to understand the ILS industry."

Testimonials

In 2020, I was appointed to the Board of African Risk Capacity (ARC) Limited, a Specialised Agency of the African Union established to help African governments improve their capacities to plan, prepare and respond to extreme weather events and natural disasters.

I leapt at the opportunity to participate in this pioneering post-graduate "ILS Fundamentals" course which runs twice a week for six-weeks. It turned out to be a real godsend since it updated my knowledge of this market.

The course exceeded my expectations in the following ways:

- The ILS market is evolving rapidly, both in value at risk and as an additional tool for investor diversification and as non-correlating assets. The course therefore brings you to the forefront of market movers and shakers, whilst updating your ILW knowledge to being relevant for right now;
- It covered the value drivers of ESG, and the roles and perspectives of all the stakeholders in the ILS chain, e.g., sponsors/issuers, the client, structurers, modelers, the role of the SPV, pricing and spreads, the ILS Fund Managers, book runner and managing the expected risk return profile of the investors and collateralisation of the coupon and trust agreements;
- It delved deeply into Catastrophe Bonds (Indemnity / non indemnity), Industry Loss Warranties (ILW), Contingent Loan Financing, Weather Derivatives, the role of Risk Pools and the economic drivers of finding solutions for the enormous impact that climate change will have on the world, as well as the significant ILS role that it can play in that space;

This is just a mere taste of the fascinating course chapters that build your interest in the ILS world, which are complemented by real clients and key industry heavyweights such as Urs Ramseier of Twelve Capital which share their story.

I thoroughly recommend the course and its presenters for anyone linked to the industry or anyone who wants to expand their knowledge in this unique market segment.

Testimonials

"First of all I should thank Kirill Savrassov and Toby Pughe for the great lectures and discussions over the last two months!

In the class, the professor organized theoretical knowledge and practical cases related to insurance, securities, and risk, including the "Belt and Road" project case study, as well as the analysis of natural risks and disasters. These methods will be very helpful for my future career. Although I passed the course and received the certificate, I will continue to learn about financial insurance. And I would recommend this course to anyone who wants to expand their understanding of financial risk transfer and gain insight into the exciting world of insurance-related securities.

Not to be outdone, the course also attracts leaders from the ILS field who will share their knowledge and experience in a knowledgeable manner. This comprehensive approach helps to consolidate learning and understand how ILS works in the real world from the people who know it best. I am sure you will love it!"

"After two months and a total of 48 hours of study, I spent a pleasant study time with the teachers of ILS.

During this period, the teachers organized theoretical knowledge and practical cases related to insurance, securities and risks, including the case explanation of the Belt and Road project, as well as the problem analysis of natural risks and disasters. Method has helped to a great extent.

Until today, I have passed the exam of this course and obtained the relevant certificate, which will help me in my personal career, and I will also recommend it to my business partners and schoolmates. Learn more about the course content at ILS together"

"Risk transfer is a fascinating area based on the globalization of the economy, and the ILS course opens up a whole new world. By combining the basics with case studies, the course shows how ILS works in full, so that even a beginner can quickly understand it. Of course, the lectures from industry leaders are equally beneficial.

I am sure that the introduction of this course into China will be a great surprise to the Chinese insurance industry. After all, the role of the ILS in the "Belt, and Road Initiative" project is obvious to all. I hope that more people can find the ILS course fascinating!"

"Having been searching for the most relevant course in Insurance Linked Securities, this course has quenched my insatiable desire for cutting edge knowledge in structuring Catastrophe bonds, Industry Loss Warranties, Sidecars, Sovereign risk management solutions etc. The lectures were excellent and exciting especially with the involvement of technocrats as guest speakers from leading corporations such as Twelve Capital, Tokio Marine Asset Management and UNDP. The course material was very relevant, and the course convenors were flexible in teaching, tailoring the programme to meet the industry expectations.

Furthermore, I gained a lot of exposure to the other delegates and got a great opportunity for networking. After attending the course, I am applying the skills that I learnt which I believe will be a great contributor to the result of the projects I work on. I have and will continue to recommend this course to others"

Testimonials

"As a practitioner in international development cooperation, the focus throughout my career has been on technical issues surrounding climate change adaptation and disaster risk reduction measures that help enhance resilience.

Increasingly, the topic of climate and disaster risk finance and insurance and its many advantages is being discussed among national and local governments, the private sector and civil society and within the wider development partner landscape.

No single approach promises to be a "silver bullet" in responding to some of the greatest challenges of our time, however-- the course instructors manage, equipped with excellent facilitation skills, patience and expertise, to conceptually blend ILS as a specific asset class and risk transfer solution into an integrated approach towards resilience building efforts. This helps bring together a wide array of "communities" of professionals whose background and language may differ vastly and thus addresses a critical gap in capacity development and higher education.

The course, "Fundamentals of Insurance-Linked Securities (ILS)" assisted me in to further building and elaborating in-depth knowledge on this innovative modality of risk transfer and convergence with the capital markets that is certainly unique in its offering and comes with a plethora of shared materials, lectures and a warm and embracing style of delivery of the topic at hand.

I can only recommend this whole-heartedly to anyone who is currently looking into solutions to further close the global protection gap and their knowledge thereof."

"With a background in "Traditional" re/insurance, the Fundamentals of ILS Course provided the perfect introduction, and exposure to, the world of alternative risk transfer. Starting with any level of related knowledge, this course brings the fundamental elements of ILS together, and demonstrates how they are implemented using practical, real-world examples.

In addition to a core body of theoretical lectures, the course also brings in leaders from across the ILS spectrum, who share their knowledge and experience unfiltered. This combined approach helps consolidate learning and understand how ILS works in the real world from those who know it best.

I would recommend this course to anyone wanting to expand their understanding of financial risk transfer, and to gain insight into the exciting world of insurance linked securities."

"The ILS course is the best value ILS course there is with a unique mix of theory and practical teaching." The course is laced with ILS practitioners of considerable experience and expertise giving participants in-depth insights into the real world issues that pertain to ILS. The online interactive sessions are delivered weekly which make them accessible and much easier to integrate into a normal working day unlike many executive education courses.

I highly recommend this course to anyone who has an interest in ILS. At African Risk Capacity our entire Underwriting & Actuarial team has participated in the course and all the participants are unanimous in their appreciation of the course. We will be working with the convenors of the course to increase the participation through innovative partnerships."

"I have been working in the areas of natural disasters and climate resilience, and insurance analytics solutions. The insurance-linked securities (ILS) market and applications have grown as an uncorrelated asset class and alternate risk transfer solution.

It was a great, timely opportunity to be part of this unique ILS program with excellent teaching faculty and guest lecturers. My favorite parts of this program were: detailed analysis of some recent cat bonds and other ILS asset classes and insights about the role of ILS from multiple perspectives – asset managers, (re)insurers, and sovereign risk transfer.

Overall, it was a very enriching experience!"

Testimonials

"For someone without any insurance background, the course provided a comprehensive view of the asset class covering perspectives from the sponsor/issuer, investor, public sector. Excellent repository of information - comprising not just lecture notes, but additional materials from both an academic standpoint, and recent market news. This is especially commendable given how difficult it is to find what you are looking for in ILS! Great insight from market participants, invaluable to hear straight from the horse's mouth.

Well-paced and twice-weekly consistency ensures good retention of learning. Systematic delivery and good course structure - no other platform as such. My prior experiences trying to search for information has been very challenging and time-consuming and the course is an effective and efficient means to learn.

Warm class atmosphere where open dialogue is encouraged and all questions are welcome. Small, inclusive class size, great starting point to know people with similar professional/academic interests. Direct access to guest speakers who are market and academic professionals as well."

"The course is unique in may ways be it pioneer in bringing ILS as a course or an approach to amalgamate practical and theoretical knowledge bundled in a curriculum.

The course helped me not only to understand the ILS market and its fundamental but also how to view a particular product (eg: Cat bond) from the perspective of all parties involved such as the investor, sponsors and intermediaries etc.

The best part of the course was touching all aspects of ILS branches and practical knowledge of the lecturers. Its also worth mentioning that the wealth of repository offered for the course adds value to my understanding for long run."

"I am very happy having received today the ILS first Global course certificate of completion and passing the exam.

I would like to thank Kirill Savrassov and Toby Pughe for enthusiasm and vision of having created the first global certificated course in ILS (insurance-linked securities) given, and all the effort put into, to make sure they would give us all the perspectives of the ILS chain, like the importance that its has for the Catastrophe and other markets and how this type of Alternative risk Transfer (ART) can help governments and economies in different catastrophic events and how the Insurance and reinsurance companies utilized it as well. And of course, what is the investor point of view in all of this.

Kirill & Toby are still doing an important work and effort to increase the support that this international course already obtained from several international associations and universities. Many thanks for this experience and grateful to have know all of you."
